

Footnotes Demo

This document ends with a block of footnotes set in smaller type at the bottom of the page, the way academic papers present them, well clear of the body text above.

The body text is set at the normal body size, so the smaller footnote block below is clearly distinguishable both by its font size and by its position on the page.

A reader scanning the page sees the main argument first and the supporting footnotes, each with its reference marker, gathered together at the very bottom.

- 1 First footnote explains a referenced detail in smaller type.
- 2 Second footnote points readers to a related resource for context.
- 3 Third footnote adds a final clarifying remark about the method.
